Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

(Namely, it is improper to have the phrase "The present invention" in the abstract.)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. For claim 1, line 5, it is unclear which vertical rod is being referred to since plural rods have been claimed previously; in line 10, it is unclear which optical disk slot is being referred to since plural slots have been claimed previously; in line 13, it is unclear which vertical rod is being referred to since plural rods have been claimed previously; in line 15, it is unclear which fixing end is being referred to since plural ends have been claimed previously; in line 16, it is unclear which large hole is being referred to since plural large holes have been claimed previously; in lines 11-13 and 15-16, it is unclear whether only one or both rods include the holes (in lines 11-13 only one rod is stated as having holes while in lines 15-16 both are stated as having holes); in line 17, the phrase "small hole being passed by a fixture..." is confusing; and in line 17, it is unclear which frame is being referred to since plural frames have been claimed previously. For claim 5, it is unclear which vertical rod is being referred to since plural rods have been claimed previously. For claim 7, it is unclear whether or not the "a frame" is one of the frames claimed previously, "said main object placing rack" lacks antecedent basis, and it is unclear whether the "an object placing board" in lines 4-5 is the same board claimed previously. For claim 8, "said...main desk board" lacks antecedent basis. For claim 10, "said main desk board" lacks antecedent basis.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 1 would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action. (The allowable subject matter being the computer desk having two vertical rods, an arc panel optical disk rack with a rear rod attached to at least one of the vertical rods and frames, each with two protruding ends attached to a respective vertical rod.)

Claims 2-10 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
